Established in 1915, Webster is a Non-Profit, US-Accredited University, with its main campus in St Louis and international campuses in Europe, Asia and Africa. Founded in 1978, our Geneva campus offers Graduate and Undergraduate degrees, and hosts students from more than 90 nationalities. Webster University is committed to diversity and to student success.

Webster University is accredited since 1925 by the Higher Learning Commission. For more details: http://www.webster.ch/

Webster University Geneva is recruiting

Assistant Professor in International History and Politics

Ideal start date: June 1st, 2018

Working hours: 100% Full-time Employment

1/ Position overview

The Department of International Relations of Webster University Geneva is seeking applicants for an Assistant Professor position in International History and Politics beginning on June 1st, 2018. The position is based in Webster University Geneva, Switzerland. The successful candidate must have demonstrated excellence through peer-reviewed publications, and must possess a good track record in teaching. The position calls for someone with knowledge in International History and Politics, able to develop the following areas: History of International Organizations, History of Peacekeeping Operations, History of International Relations and International Politics; alternatively, Asian areas Studies with an emphasis on Japan-U.S. relations. He/She should have a strong background in dealing with primary sources and be able to collaborate efficiently with colleagues. He/She will have a central role to play as a researcher and be involved in the research committee activities, as well as serve on other institutional committees.

2/ Essential duties and Responsibilities

- Teach courses (5) at the undergraduate and graduate levels, supervise master’s dissertations
- Publish in peer-reviewed journals
- Contribute to the development of high-quality programs and courses in his/her field of expertise
- Participate in the university’s institutional life (internal/external)
- Cooperate with the Head of the Department of International Relations
- Advise undergraduate and graduate students

3/ Qualifications

- PhD in International History and Politics / Political Science / International Relations
- A specialization or special expertise in : a) History of International Relations; b) The History of International Organizations; c) The History of International Non-Governmental Organizations; d) Current topics in International Organizations; e) Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs); f) Asian Area Studies
- Publications in high-quality peer-reviewed journals
- A proven ability to deliver excellent teaching
- English fluency
- Knowledge of other languages such as French, German and Italian is an asset

How to apply?

Please send your application (curriculum vitae, a cover letter, a current research sample, a research statement, a teaching statement, and three contact details for references) to the Human Resources Director – the HR Department at: Geneva.HR@webster.ch. The deadline for submitting applications is March 19th, 2018, but candidates are strongly encouraged to submit as soon as possible.